This book is actually three separate stories about "Buster", who is a very shy dog. These were bought for a child with social anxiety and it was nice for the child to be able to read about a character who felt the same as he did. As nice, was the fact that Buster would face his fears and be rewarded with a positive outcome.

Buster is not a small dog, but he feels like a small dog. He feels small at crowded birthday parties. He feels small when he tries to catch balls or chase wild animals. He especially feels small next to Phoebe, a bold dog who is an ace ballcatcher, popular at parties, and seemingly unafraid of anything. In these
