The Premier One was the first of a line of state-of-the-art contenders to carry the conrad-johnson Premier badge. Uncommonly powerful for a tube amplifier at 200 watts per channel, the Premier One was identified by one leading audiophile publication as the best sounding power amplifier ever made to that time.

The vast majority of online reviews cover the SE or Special Edition version of conrad-johnson's ET3 preamplifier. However since it retails for $4000 without a phono stage ($5500 with), and the base ET3 line stage goes for only $2950 on Amazon with free shipping, I thought a review of the 25%-off base version might be appropriate.

The conrad-johnson ET3 preamplifier is a remarkable preamp, but I had trepidation about the way it's being promoted. It's down to the 'baby GAT' thing - the ET3 is being touted as an affordable version of the company's GAT flagship pre. That, I feared, is setting the ET3 up for a fall; the GAT is so damn good, it's like calling ...
